A ball team composed of high school and town players invaded the territory of the S. of O. last Monday and with the help of five ardent fans trimmed their ball team to the tune of 6 to 5. Not much, but a plenty. It's getting late for base ball but none of the players complained of the cold during the game. The day was better suited to August.

Editor Bailly, Circuit Clerk Davis and Guides John Crockett and John Ray started yesterday morning on a float down the river. They expect to go to the mouth of Elbow creek, and to get back to Forsyth next Wednesday night.

In a letter received here the latter part of last week it was stated that the Christian county court had contracted for the building of the approaches to the new bridge over Bull creek and the working of the hills on either side of the creek. When this is done it will give us a more direct route to Springfield by way of Ozark, going from here over the new hill top road. Let the good work go on. We need the roads and the more we get the better off we will be.

A Card

To Whom it May Concern:—Mr. Charlie Croom, also his son Manfred, have both held me up on the street to tell me of a newspaper clipping Charlie claims to have been mailed to him from San Antonio, Texas, stating that J. S. McKnight, alias Montgomery, was wanted there for forgery. Manfred tried to leave the impression that it was J. C. L. McKnight. J. C. L. McKnight is a practicing physician at Seattle, Washington. Jesse Nance, of the Metropolitan Hotel, Springfield, visited McKnight in April of this year, and Jesse told me that McKnight had a good law practice and that he had his four boys by his first marriage in school at Seattle and that he spent a very pleasant visit for days with McKnight, his wife and their two little girls.

Harry Blunk, who is a son of our representative, H. M. Blunk, told me on his arrival here five years ago that J. C. L. McKnight lived at Seattle, Wash., and that he had seen and talked with him on the streets of Olympia, Wash., just before his leaving for home. Two years ago Bedford Coble, of Seattle, Wash., visited his home folks at Cedar creek, and stopped off at Forsyth and left a suit case of clothing, also money, with Jesse Nance, which had been sent by J. C. L. McKnight for his four little boys, who were making their home with my brother, P. W. Johnson, at the time. My nephew, Andrew Cross, of Oldfield, in Christian county, is just home from Olympia, Wash., and visited here some days ago. He told me that J. C. L. McKnight lived at Seattle and had a good law practice. I must say, that I have had all kinds of dealings with J. C. L. McKnight and at all times found him to be an honest man.

Respectfully,
(Adv.) LAURA JOHNSON.
